

CLAIMS INSTRUCTION SHEET

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

1. If you had loss or damage to your household goods or other property moved at government expense, claims offices will assist you in filing your claim. Please review the following information carefully. Failure to meet the deadlines or to follow the instructions may result in a reduction of any award or a complete denial of your claim.
2. We're sorry you sustained damage and/or loss in your move. The mission of this claims office is to assist you in filing your claim and to settle your claim fairly and without delay. As a claimant, you are responsible for substantiating your claim and providing the information necessary to allow the Government to obtain reimbursement from the carrier. Failure to provide requested documentation may delay the processing of your claim and/or reduce the amount that you may receive in settlement of your claim. In many cases, the carrier will be held fully liable for loss and damage incurred to your property during shipment, provided your claim is properly completed.
3. Each service branch adjudicates its own claims for damage or loss of personal property. Claims are accepted and forwarded to a local claims office of the claimant's service for action. Below are this area's Army, Air Force, Coast Guard, Navy and Marine Corps claims offices.
4. We recommend that you file your claim with the nearest claims processing office to your residence in case an inspection of your household goods is necessary. In cases where an on site inspection is not necessary, you may want to file your claim with the claims office nearest your work location.

5. DD Form 1840/1840R (Notice of loss or Damage).

a. It is the pink form you received from the carrier at delivery indicating any loss or damage you noticed at that time. Please ensure that it is legible and the information listed is correct for the move it is associated with. This form is a multi-page document. Do not continue on subsequent pages. If additional space is needed, add it on a plain piece of paper. Use the carbon paper from the form to make a copy for the driver. Indicate that a continuation sheet was used by marking it in number 14 on the front. List the inventory number, name of the item, and a description of the damage. Specifically describe the damage. General or vague terms such as "broken" do not necessarily suffice to identify the type of damage or put the carrier on notice of the damage, which you may be claiming. Use specific terms (e.g., scratched – 5", gouged – 2", cracked) and list the location of the damage, especially for those items for which the carrier has identified pre-existing damage on the inventory.

b. After delivery, inspect your shipment for any additional damage or loss and record that information on the DD Form 1840R. You must inspect all of the shipment for damages. If additional space is needed, add to it a plain piece of paper and list it as a continuation sheet. Copies will be made for you.

c. Complete and present the DD Form 1840R to a claims office within 70 days of the date of delivery. Failure to provide notice for damage or loss within 70 days will result in a reduction of the amount payable. This normally results in a disallowance of every item for which notice is not given to the carrier. If you turn in the DD Form 1840R to the claims office and subsequently discover damage or loss within 70 days of delivery, immediately notify the claims office in writing of the additional damage. If you are deployed, TDY, or hospitalized for a substantial period of the notice period and are unable to turn in the DD Form 1840R within the 70 day period, report the damage and loss to the claims office as soon as you possibly can and provide the claims office with proof that you meet these conditions.

d. Reporting damage and loss on the DD Form 1840/1840R is not filing a claim, it is only giving notice of damage and loss to the carrier.

FILING A CLAIM ESSENTIAL DOCUMENTS

The documentation listed below is necessary to actually file and have your claim processed. It must be filed within two years of the date of delivery. Failure to provide required documents will delay the settlement of your claim. Such failure may also result in the reduction of the amount paid to you or even the denial of the claim. AR 27-20 requires these documents to process your claim and you are responsible for substantiating the claim.

1. DD Form 1842 (Claim For Loss Of Or Damage To Personal Property Incident To Service). Complete blocks 1-18. The date entered in block #18 is the date the claim is turned into the claims office. This form must be signed by the service member or an agent possessing a valid Power of Attorney or written authorization to a spouse. This is the claim; all other documents are in support of your claim.

2. DD Form 1844 (List of Property And Claims Analysis Chart). Complete blocks 1-13. Describe the nature of the damage - be as specific as possible in the space allotted concerning the damage. Describe the item in sufficient detail to indicate value. Brand names and model numbers should be entered when available. The purchase price and date of purchase must be entered for each line item. If the item was a gift, identify it as a gift and the date you received it. Also, provide your best estimate of its value when you received it. You may also submit additional information concerning the damaged or missing items that may assist in evaluating the value of the item or the severity of the damage. Do not list multiple items on one line for example, 4 dining room chairs or 3 lamps.

3. PCS Orders or the document that allowed you to move your personal property at Government expense. Include any applicable amendments. If your property was in non-temporary storage you must submit PCS orders authorizing storage and PCS orders authorizing removal from storage.

4. DD Form 1164 (Service Orders For Personal Property). This form is for shipments which were in non-temporary storage. DD Form 1299 is only an application for non-temporary storage. If you do not have the DD Form 1164, it can be obtained from the Joint Personal Property Shipping Office that originally placed your property into storage.

5. GBL or BL (Government Bill of Lading or Bill of Lading). This very important document is available from the Joint Personal Property Shipping Office, Washington Area, 9325 Gunston Road, Suite N110, 5th & Gunston, Bldg. 1466, Fort Belvoir, VA 22060, (703) 806-4900 or (800) 762-7186.

6. Inventory. Submit the original copy you received when the property was packed. This inventory must be legible. If not legible, it will delay the settlement of your claim.

7. DD Form 1840/1840R reflecting your submission to the claims office within 70 days of delivery.

8. Evidence Of Ownership And Valuation. Receipts, canceled checks, credit card statements or other documents are needed for items that were less than 6 months old at the time of loss or damage. A written estimate may not be not required when the damage claimed for repair or loss of value is less than $100.00. However, you may be required to provide pictures of the damage. In some cases, an inspection of the item may be necessary to evaluate and document the value of your loss. Receipts, canceled checks, credit card statements or other documents are needed for items over $100.00 that have been lost and being replaced or the estimate of repair of the item greater than $100.00. Brand and model information is often necessary to evaluate your loss, whether the loss involves electronic items or crystal. Claimants should retain evidence of value, especially for high-value items, and should ensure that damaged items are available for inspection to confirm value of damage or loss. This type of documentation is necessary because inventory entries frequently reflect a generic description without the essential information to establish an item's value.

RELATED ISSUES

1. Spouses signing and filing claims must furnish a written authorization or Power of Attorney (POA) from the claimant authorizing the filing of the claim. Anyone else signing and filing a claim must furnish a POA authorizing them to file and settle a claim against the Government in the claimant's behalf. The claimant's agent should sign the claim form as follows: Claimant By: Claimant's Agent, Attorney in Fact.

2. Private Insurance.

a. Insurance Purchased Through Transportation Office: If you purchased full replacement protection, Option 2, under the Increased Release Valuation, the claim must be first presented to the carrier because the carrier is required to reimburse the full replacement cost for missing and destroyed items and make satisfactory repairs to damaged items. If the carrier fails to settle the claim within 30 days, the claim may then be filed against the government.

b. Private Insurance: If you have a personal policy of insurance that would cover a portion of your loss, you may elect to not file against your insurer. It may be to your advantage to not file against your insurer if your policy covers replacement cost. If you elect not to file against your insurer, you should write in block 10 on the DD Form 1842, "I elect to not file against my insurer." Additional guidance is available concerning insurance.

3. Depreciation: For items that require replacement, claims offices are required to use the Allowance List – Depreciation Guide (ALDG) to determine the replacement value of the item. Use of the ALDG ensures that the Army complies with the congressional intent to limit compensation to the actual value of the items at the time of loss. Claimants who desire additional protection may purchase private insurance or insurance through their transportation office to provide additional protection. Claims offices are authorized to deduct five years of depreciation when a claimant lists a high number of items as recently purchased but fails to substantiate recent purchase dates.

4. Appraisal fees will not be paid. Appraisals are valuations of an item's worth, and are usually done on items such as antiques, jewelry, and works of art. Furniture is not considered an antique unless an appraisal establishes it as least 100 years old.

5. Electronic Items (Computers, DVD players, VCRs, stereos, CD players, camcorders, etc.). If there is no external damage, an expert must describe the damage to the internal components and should provide an opinion concerning the cause of the damage to establish that the damage resulted from rough or improper handling by the carrier. The repair technician must complete the electronic repair form and specifically describe the damage that they observe and how he or she thinks it happened. Also, you must provide a written statement explaining how you know that electronic item was in working condition when the carrier picked it up from your former residence. For example, you may explain when you last used the item before your move and how the item worked during its last use. "It worked before the move", is not an adequate written statement. Claims directives do not allow us to pay claims for internal damage to electronic items unless there is substantial evidence that its condition is due to rough or improper handling during shipment or storage.

6. Pre-existing damage. We may not approve payment for repairs of pre-existing damage. If the evidence indicates that your property had damage prior to shipment, the cost of repairs will only include the repairs for new damage. If your description of the damage cannot be distinguished from damage entries made by the carrier, you won't get paid. In the past, claimants have merely listed scratches to furniture for which the carrier had listed scratches, noting the location of the scratches, on the inventory. Such general entries won't result in reimbursement. Be specific. We may also inspect in cases where the carrier has listed very similar pre-existing damage to that listed by you or the repair technician.

7. Missing Items. Claimants must submit evidence of the ownership (purchase receipts, canceled checks, credit card statements, photos, or witness statements) to substantiate value, especially when high values are asserted. In the case of a missing box or boxes, a complete list of the items contained in that box should be listed, especially when significant value is claimed for the missing contents. A "carton of clothes" without proof, as described above, will not establish the contents as missing designer suits.

8. Proof of Tender to Carrier. Proof of tender is needed to recovery against the carrier for missing high value items such as expensive jewelry. Items with higher value have a higher evidentiary standard for proof of tender. The best proof of tender is a description of each item on the inventory. There should also be receipts establishing purchase, an explanation of how you acquired the property, or photos showing its use before shipment.

9. Inspection and Photographs. The carrier and our office have the right to conduct an inspection of the property. If inspection by our office is impractical due to distance or other factors, photographs may still help evaluate the damage to your property and its value for claims purposes. In some cases, we may suggest that you take pictures and will allow reimbursement for a roll of film and developing costs. If you feel that pictures may help us evaluate your claim, please inform claims personnel in advance if you want reimbursement for pictures taken of your damaged property.

10. Estimates. Estimate fees are refundable as long as they do not go towards the cost of repairs. Claimants must submit a receipt for the estimate fee. If an estimate fee will be credited toward the cost of repair, the estimate is not payable regardless of whether the claimant chooses to have the work done. Estimates should be on letter head or company logo paper, stating the nature of the wood, damage and the cost to repair. If repair cannot be made it should state that also. Replacement costs from a repair firm are not authorized unless that firm also sells the particular item.

11. Replacement of damaged items. To obtain replacement cost for damaged property, claimants must clearly establish that the damaged property cannot be economically repaired. You should provide our office a detailed repair estimate showing the item is beyond repair. In addition, you must submit an appraisal, purchase receipt, canceled check, or credit card statement to substantiate the value of the destroyed item. This is essential for items costing $100.00 or more. Printouts from a web site or from magazines should show the actual item and allow comparison with the damaged item to assist in the settlement of the claim. If the item is crystal or figurine costing more than $50.00, an inspection by the claims office may be required. The replacement item must be identical or substantially similar to the one destroyed.

12. Disposal of damaged items. You may dispose of broken glass items only. Never dispose of figurines or crystal items with a per item value of $50.00 or more. Please contact the Claims Office before disposing of wet, mildewed or smoke-damaged items. Do not dispose of any other damaged items until you consult the claims office or after 120 days from when the claim has been paid by us. Inspection of damaged items may be necessary to adjudicate your claim. Failure to save damaged items could reduce the amount payable. Additionally, damaged items that have salvage value become the property of the carrier, and disposal without authority could also result in a reduction of the amount payable.

13. You cannot receive double payment for the same damage. If you receive reimbursement from the carrier or an insurance carrier, you must notify the claims office. You are responsible for returning any overpayment to the government.

14. Damage to real property and inconvenience claims. Army claims offices may not pay for damage to real property or inconvenience claims. If your house or other real property is damaged during pickup or delivery by the carrier, you should contact the carrier's office immediately. If there is a delay in delivery beyond the required delivery date due to the fault of the carrier, you may file an inconvenience claim through the transportation office. You may contact a legal assistance office for assistance with these types of claims.

REPAIR FIRMS

In accordance with the Joint Ethics Regulation, we do not specifically endorse any of the following businesses. You may also consult the yellow pages for local repair firms. Some businesses have not been listed because estimates have exceeded the amount considered reasonable, or because of specific complaints about business practices. The company that provides the estimate of repair must be able to do the repair work.
